PARIS, KENTUCKY, FRIDAY, OCTOBER 16, 1914.

SECRETARY OF STATE WM. J. BRYAN SPEAKS HERE.

The special train bearing Hon. William Jennings Bryan, Secretary of State, who is making a series of ten speeches in the State in the interest of the Democratic Senatorial candidates, and in the interest of President Woodrow Wilson's administration, arrived in Paris at 11:15 yesterday morning from Cynthiana, where the Secretary spoke to a large crowd at the L. & N. passenger station.

The train was greeted at the Tenth Street passenger station in this city by a crowd estimated at about 700, many of whom came from the county precincts, where the name of William Jennings Bryan is still revered. When the train arrived a loud cheer from the crowd announced the appearance of the "Peerless One," who, in a few moments after the train came to a stop, appeared upon the rear platform of the observation car attached to the train, and after a few moments wait for the cheering to subside, launched at once into his speech, which held the attention of the auditors for thirty minutes.

Mr. Bryan made a thoroughly Bryanesque speech, in which he made an eloquent plea for the upholding of President Wilson's hands in the policies he was endeavoring to inaugurate for the betterment of conditions in the United States, and spoke in general terms of the wisdom of the President's course in keeping the country from becoming involved in war with Mexico and with Europe. He referred in glowing phrases to the good selections Kentucky had made in the recent Congressional races, and asked the voters to see to it that these men were sent to Congress again to represent the State of Kentucky, as their return would mean a merited endorsement of the Wilson administration. His neat references to Senator Camden, ex-Governor Beckham, Representatives Cantrill and representative Kentuckians brought forth frequent applause from the crowd.

The train was made up of a baggage car, day car and the special car for the Bryan party. At the conclusion of the speech the train pulled out for Lexington, where Mr. Bryan addressed a big crowd in the afternoon. County Judge Chas. A. McMillan introduced Lieutenant-Governor J. E. McDermott, of Frankfort, in a neat little speech, and Mr. McDermott, in turn, introduced the speaker, Mr. Bryan, in a witty speech which immediately caught the fancy of the crowd.

The party were unlucky in coming to Paris in the midst of unfavorable weather conditions, but they made the most of it, and as one enthusiast expressed it, "When Bill Bryan comes to Paris to make a speech to us Democrats, it'll take more than a day like this to dampen our ardor."

Accompanying Mr. Bryan on the trip were former Lieutenant-Governor Wm. P. Thorne, Lieutenant-Governor E. J. McDermott, Mr. John W. Newman, President of the State Agricultural Commission; Thos. Rhea, Treasurer of the Democratic State Committee; Claude B. Terrell, Speaker of the Kentucky House of Representatives; Wm. O. Davis, Secretary to United States Senator J. N. Camden; Milton Smith, Jr., James Reed, Superintendent of the Eastern Kentucky State Hospital, and representatives of the press.

HEALTH LEAGUE WORK MOST IMPORTANT IN COUNTY.

Suppose free delivery of mail were removed from the City of Paris and the County of Bourbon, there would go up from the whole citizenship a protest and if it were a question of paying for the service each tax payer would come forward with the amount necessary to maintain the splendid service.

It has never been a luxury, but a necessity always, and yet the Paris and Bourbon County visiting nurse, Mrs. Mineker, is subject to the call of everyone needing theoretical or practical aid in case the necessity arises. Sanitation and hygiene are just as important to our citizens as free mail delivery. The point we want to make is that the citizens of Paris and Bourbon County should give freely of their money to sustain this institution.

Now is the time to give what you will. The three newspapers of Paris will gladly take charge of any contributions sent them and promptly turn them over to the Health and Welfare League.

A resume of the activities of the visiting nurse, Mrs. Mineker, shows astonishing results. She is constantly going into the homes of those needing services, gratis. You have but to notify her that her services are needed and she will come at any time. She has abundantly demonstrated her fitness and ability for this work, and even now there are homes in this city and county where her coming is welcomed as is the sunshine after a day of gloom.

Come, forward, please, and help this more than worthy cause—the helping of those in sickness and distress who are financially unable to help themselves.

THE TABERNACLE MEETING.

Despite the heavy rains of the past few days, and counter attractions, the attendance at the Tabernacle meetings does not lessen, and the evangelists are greeted with large audiences at every meeting.

No services were held on Monday, as that has been selected as a "rest day."

The Tuesday morning services were well attended, although many were possibly kept away by the heavy rains.

On Tuesday night, which had been designated as "Railroad Men's Night," it was estimated that over five hundred railroad employees with their families were present at the services. The center tier of seats had been reserved for the railroad men, and they came in squads and soon filled up the entire space assigned especially for them.

Evangelist Ham delivered a specially prepared sermon to the men, in which he directed his remarks to the special needs of the men who were engaged in so hazardous a calling. A special musical program was rendered under the direction of Chorister Ramsey. The railroad men evinced a decidedly lively interest in the sermon and the song service.

On Wednesday night the inclement weather seemed destined to have a deterrent effect upon the attendance, but they came in spite of the weather, and heard Evangelist Ham deliver a very strong sermon. The song service was also very pleasing.

Tonight the Tabernacle will be filled with the members of the I. O. O. F. lodges of the county, supplemented by delegations of their brethren from surrounding towns and county lodges. The "three-link" men will be addressed by Evangelist Ham in a sermon of great interest and along the lines of "Faith, Hope and Charity," and the other cardinal virtues which are the foundation of this great order.

MRS. QUINLAN SUICIDES BY THE PARIS GREEN ROUTE.

As the result of a dose of Paris green taken with suicidal intent, Mrs. Lorena Collins Quinlan, aged 22 years, wife of Mr. William Quinlan, of Paris, died at midnight Sunday at the home of her mother, Mrs. Emma Collins, near Jacksonville. No cause was assigned for the act. Mrs. Quinlan had been in bad health since the death of her infant child, which occurred about six months ago, and had been greatly depressed since the death of her father, Mr. William O. Collins, who died suddenly about two months ago.

She is survived by her husband and her mother, Mrs. Emma Collins, and by five sisters, Mrs. George Moore, of this county; Mrs. Morin Moore, of Paris; Mrs. Wm. Moore, of Versailles; Mrs. James Slack, of Georgetown; Mrs. Taylor Jones, of Harrison county; three brothers, Lee, Stoll and Robert Collins, of this county.

Funeral services were held at the residence of Mrs. Collins, on the Clay and Kiser pike, Tuesday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock. Rev. Jones, of Cynthiana, conducted services at the grave in the Lee Smith burying grounds near Jacksonville. The pall-bearers were Jos. Johnson, Marion Ryles, Jas. Fee Smith, Noah Smith and Ben Kiser.

MR. BRYAN COMES TO KENTUCKY

Hon. W. J. Bryan, Secretary of State, made a speech at Lexington yesterday afternoon and another at Louisville the same night. He was accompanied by Governor Beckham and Congressman Cantrill and Congressman Sherley also made short addresses. Mr. Bryan came to Kentucky after a conference with President Wilson in which the National situation was thoroughly discussed. It is important that Kentucky should have two Democrats in the Senate to uphold the policies of the administration, and it is the desire of the President and Mr. Bryan that every Democrat in the State should vote the straight ticket this fall. Mr. Bryan's popularity in Kentucky is wide-spread; no other Democrat has so large a following. There are demands for his presence from all quarters of the State, and Chairman Rhea of the Democratic State Campaign Committee, regrets that Mr. Bryan, by reason of engagements in other States, cannot devote more time to Kentucky.

APPEAL FROM MRS. STEWART.

The News is in receipt of a communication from Mrs. Cora Wilson Stewart, whose great work in the illiteracy movement, has brought her national renown, in which she makes a special appeal to the ministers of Bourbon County and the City of Paris.

Mrs. Stewart earnestly requests the Paris and Bourbon County ministers to set aside next Sunday, October 25, as a day on which to preach to their respective congregations on the evils and disadvantages of illiteracy, and to urge each and every one to join in the movement by encouraging the establishment of "moonlight schools," and by influencing adults, and especially illiterate persons to attend.

Mrs. Stewart states that the State of Kentucky has 208,084 people who cannot read, and that sermons on the importance of getting the basis of an education so as to be able to read and write would prove of popular interest and would be far-reaching in its effects.

BOSTON CHAMPIONS.

Stalling's Boston team won the World's Championship series by annexing the fourth consecutive game Tuesday by a score of 3 to 1. The batteries were Rudolph and Gowdy for the Boston and Shawley and Schang for the Athletics.

A GROWING EVIL THAT NEEDS SOME CONTROL.

Patrons who attended the performance of "The Yellow Ticket" at the Grand Opera House Wednesday night witnessed the presentation of as powerful a play as has been their good fortune to witness in many months.

But it is a most regrettable fact that the enjoyment of those patrons who occupied balcony seats, and in fact, a great many in the rear on the lower floor was marred by the rowdy conduct of the negro patrons of the house in the gallery. The noise from that section of the house was at times so loud that the patrons of the balcony and on the lower floor could hardly hear the lines spoken on the stage. Loud cries, cat-calls, and boisterous laughter came at the most inopportune time, and in several instances the effect of some of the strongest scenes in the celebrated play was almost entirely ruined by the laughter and unseemly noises from the "roost." This has happened on numerous occasions, and in nearly each instance the attraction was one of the kind that demanded close attention on the part of the auditors.

The News is in receipt of the following communication signed with the name of one of the best-known citizens of Paris, which will explain itself:

Paris, Ky., October 14.

"Editor The Bourbon News: Dear Sir—For the past fifteen years I have been a constant reader of the Bourbon News, a subscriber in all that time. With very few exceptions I have agreed with you on all matters of public policy which you have advocated, and time has demonstrated to me that as a rule your policy has been wise and prudent and safe.

"Therefore, I appeal to you through the columns of your paper to lend your influence to suppressing an evil vastly complained of.

"I am a lover of the drama, therefore a constant patron of the Grand Opera House in this city. I attended the performance Wednesday night at this house of 'The Yellow Ticket,' having a seat in the balcony. From what I heard of the play I judged it to be one of the best performances I have ever seen in that house. I paid a dollar for my seat. I left the theatre with the firm opinion that the conduct of the negroes in the gallery, their loud talking, their whistling and unnecessary commotion had deprived me of the enjoyment I should have had, and I do not believe such conduct would have been tolerated in any other house in the United States.

"I came down into the lobby to enter a protest to the manager of the house, but found that I had been forestalled by several other indignant patrons. When the question was asked of the President of the Board of Directors of the Opera House as to why the city officials did not try to stop the conduct in the gallery his reply was 'Why, what have they got to do with it?'

"In justice to Manager Elliott, of the Colonial Amusement Co., it must be said that he also expressed indignation, and declared that he would do everything in his power in the future to see that the patrons of the house were protected. It seems to me surely some means could be devised to prevent a repetition of such bad conduct and that a way might be found to suppress the element that frequents that gallery in order that the patrons who pay their money may be guaranteed the enjoyment of the play.

"Respectfully,"

"A PATRON."

In connection with this subject we will say that on the morning after the performance of "The Yellow Ticket" Mr. Louis Donazzetti, manager of the company, visited the office of the News, and made an indignant protest about the disorder. He stated that Paris had a good reputation as a show town, and that after witnessing the scenes enacted in the audience the night of the performance he wished to add his approval of the righteous indignation manifested by those who wish to enjoy the performance. He said that it would not be long before it would be an utter impossibility to get a first-class attraction to play Paris if the patrons were to be annoyed as they were Wednesday night.

Surely there ought to be some means of remedying this state of affairs, and guarantee to the people of Paris, whose money built this pretty playhouse that they can purchase tickets with the assurance that they will be allowed to enjoy the full measure of each performance.

BIG LANDSLIDE CLOSES THE PANAMA CANAL.

PANAMA, Oct. 15.—A serious landslide in the Culebra Cut at a late hour last night interrupted completely all traffic through the Panama Canal. Several ships in the canal have been unable to complete their passage.

It is said that traffic through the canal will be interrupted for some time.

Col. Goethals and other officials are making an examination of the extent of the damage.
